

Question 1:

What is the most commonly used variable naming style in Python?

Question 2:

What is the correct way to assign values 5, 10, and 15 to variables a, b, and c in one line?

Question 3:

What error occurs if the number of variables does not match the number of values during multiple assignment?

Question 4:

What is the output of the following code?

```
pi = 3.14159
print(f"The value of pi is {pi:.2f}")
```

Question 5:

What is the correct order of operations in Python according to PEMDAS?

Question 6:

What keyword is used in Python to modify a global variable inside a function?

Question 7:

What happens if you try to access a local variable outside the function it was defined in?

Question -6:

You are working on a payroll system. Please write the best variable name to store the number of hours an employee has worked?

Question 7:

Write down which is NOT allowed when creating a variable name in Python?

Question 8:

You wrote the code: p, q = 1, 2, 3. What error will Python raise?

Question 9:

You declare two variables: x = 3 and y = 3. Why might Python store both in the same memory location?

Question 10:

You want to display the message Hello, Alice where username = "Alice". Which method below is the most readable and modern way to achieve this in Python?

Question 11:

What is the main advantage of using variables like `total_expenses` and `remaining_budget` instead of repeating the entire calculation every time?

Question 12:

You're writing a cooking timer app. Inside a function `boil_pasta()`, you define `timer = 10`. What kind of variable is `timer`?